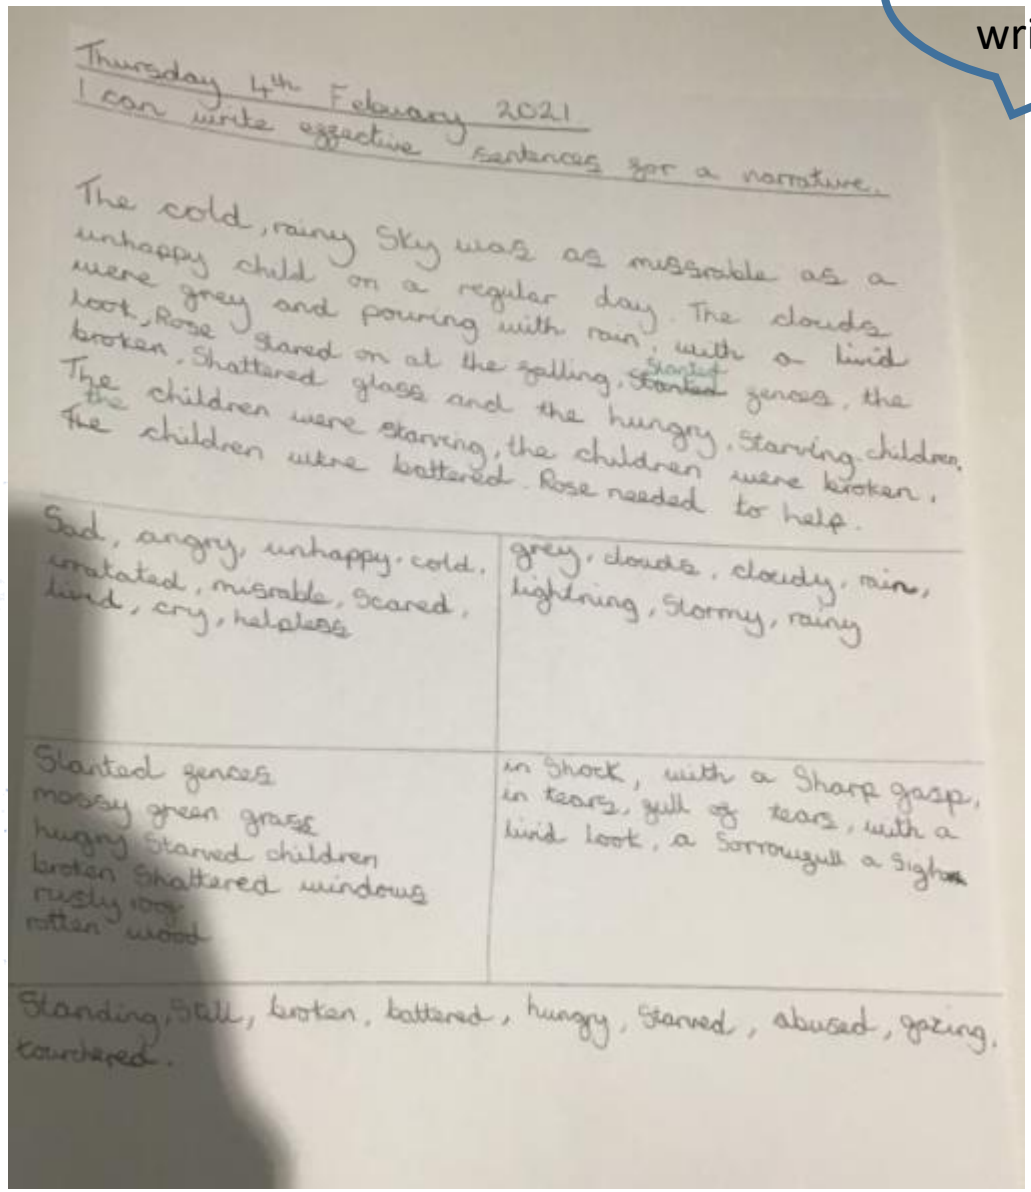
Fantastic writing



Thursday 4th February 2021
I can write effective sentences for a narrative.

The cold, rainy sky was as miserable as a unhappy child on a regular day. The clouds were grey and pouring with rain, with a livid look, Rose stared on at the spilling, ~~slanted~~ slanted fences, the broken, shattered glass and the hungry, starving children. The children were starving, the children were broken, the children were battered. Rose needed to help.

Sad, angry, unhappy, cold, irritated, miserable, scared, livid, cry, helpless	grey, clouds, cloudy, rain, lightning, stormy, rainy
Slanted fences mossy green grass hungry starved children broken shattered windows rusty, old rotten wood	in shock, with a sharp gasp, in tears, full of tears, with a livid look, a sorrowful a sigh

Standing, still, broken, battered, hungry, starved, abused, gazing, tarnished.

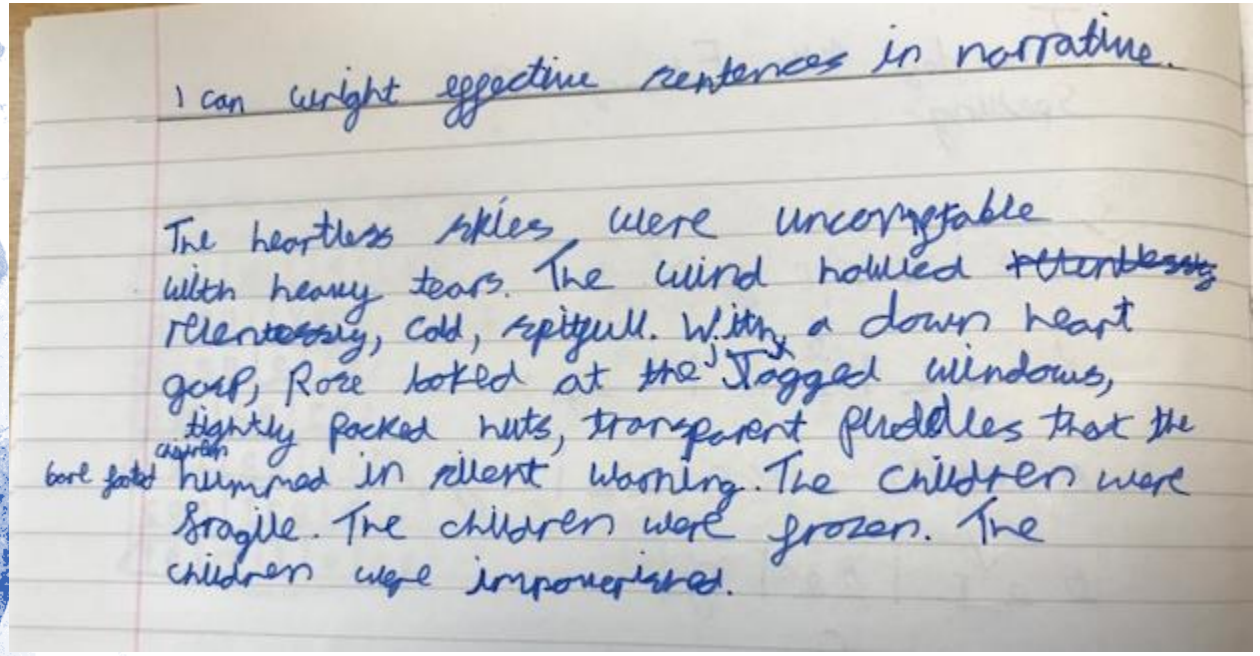
Look at that vocabulary!



I can write effective sentences in narrative.

The heartless skies were uncomfortable with heavy tears. The wind howled relentlessly, cold, spiteful. With a down heart gasp, Rose looked at the jagged windows, tightly packed nuts, transparent puddles that the airplan horrified humans in silent warning. The children were fragile. The children were frozen. The children were impoverished.

What an opening line!

I can write effective sentences for a narrative.

1. On Tuesday ✓
2. like a log ✓
3. quite brilliantly ✓
4. in his bedroom ✓
5. won+always

The distraught skies were ominous and stormy. The rain lashed down relentlessly as the unforgiving wind whipped ~~thunderously~~ with no mercy. With a sorrowful sigh, Rose looked on at the frosted windows, slanted roofs, and the sharp as flint wire, that hummed maliciously. The children were immobile. The children were frozen. The children were shivering. Rose needed to help.
